Anantara Hua Hin Resort

Located just a few hours' drive south of Bangkok, Hua Hin has long been regarded as a premier seaside destination, historically favored by Thai royalty and aristocracy. In 1928, King Prajadhipok commissioned the construction of his summer residence, Klai Kang Won Palace – meaning “Far from Worries” – situated not far from Anantara Hua Hin.

The palace remains in official use to this day. Renowned for its year-round sunshine and a pristine six-kilometre stretch of beach lined with swaying palms, Hua Hin continues to attract visitors from around the world.

Guests are drawn to the area's serene natural beauty, exceptional seafood, and diverse range of local attractions. From horseback rides at sunrise and kitesurfing over the waves to day excursions exploring jungle waterfalls, cliffside temples, and vibrant water parks, Hua Hin offers a truly memorable coastal escape.

The image shows a corner of a hotel room. On the left, a floor lamp with a tall, thin black stand and a square, light-colored fabric shade stands next to a window. The window is covered with light-colored wooden shutters. To the right of the lamp is a bed with a light-colored wooden headboard. The bed is dressed in a white sheet and has several pillows: two large white pillows, two smaller pillows with vertical red and blue stripes, and two square pillows with a red and white diamond pattern. The wall behind the bed is a neutral, textured grey. The overall lighting is warm and soft.
