CHRISTMAS DID YOU KNOW?

Did You Know that Blacktip Reef Sharks are known to reproduce viviparously, meaning they don't lay eggs? The embryo of the young sharks takes shape within the mother's body, thereby making this species of sharks different from the others that reproduce oviparously. These sharks nourish their young ones in utero through a yolk-sac placenta.

NEW YEAR DID YOU KNOW?

Did You Know that there are more than 400 known species of sharks on earth, with their existence dating back to about 420 million years ago? Humankind has always been afraid of sharks because of their predatory nature. However, not all species with the designation of shark are as threatening and dangerous.
