The Fruit Island

About Thoddoo Island

Thoddoo is a inhabited island is 2km long and 1km wide, with a rough size of 2sq km, and agricultural land is roughly 1/3rd of the total island, making Thoddoo one of the most green and lush island in the Maldives.

A good way to explore the island is by cycling around in morning or evening to see what it is like outside of the tourist beaches. The shores are thronging with numerous species & proportions of scuttling crustaceans and clever hermit crabs who use coconut shells, glass bottoms & bottle caps as their portable homes. Due to its innate placement, Thoddoo offers magnificent beaches for tourists, the two most eminent ones being on opposite ends of the island.
